Find any text within any type of file, even images and archives such as ZIP, TAR, BZ2, GZ, etc. All the text, whether it's acronyms, subtitles or even HTML: any text within any file type and any text in any format. Search for a word or a phrase in a single or multiple lines and all files of any kind: PDF, DOCX, TXT, PPT, XLS, XLSX, HTML, DOC, DOCX, EPUB, HTML, CHM, XPS, TXT, PDF, MS Office, etc. Find the best match for your interests: by keyword, by word type, by language, by filename, by size, by attributes, etc. Note: you don't need to "copy" the whole text, just the area where you want to search and paste it in the search result

How to use: Open the Microsoft Windows Search window from the Start menu, by typing "windows search" in the search box. Open the file you want to search, navigate to where the text should be and start typing. Search for a specific word or phrase in any of the content of the file Select your file(s) from the results list and click the Open button to view it

Comments If you would like to submit reviews for other users, please use our form. I have to admit, I never thought much about the Windows Search function. I use it every now and then, but I never think about it, it just works and I was happy with that. On this site I think I will get the same feeling that I never thought about it, except to use it to look for a certain file
